VAYER'S

CHERRY PECTORAL

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

THIS invaluable remedy for the diseases of the Throat and Lungs, has attained a celebrity for its remarkable cures never equalled by any other medicine known. Other preparations have performed many wonderful cures, but this has gone beyond any thing ever before known in the history of medicine. Even those apparently in the last stages of Consumption, and whose friends have given them over, have been restored to health and soundness by its use. Indeed, so wide is the field of its usefulness, and so numerous the cases of its cures in every section of the country, that almost every family may be said to need it as a protection against the early attacks of the above complaints.

As the Proprietor is constantly traveling through the various parts of the country, he frequently hears of remarkable cures of Colds, which have been thought to be settled Consumption, and of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Asthma, and Hoarseness, which were breaking down the constitution, and paving the way for Consumption, which have been entirely cured by the Cherry Pectoral. Many of these cases have been publicly known in the localities where they occurred, and the Proprietor has thought that a statement of them, in a condensed form, would be interesting to the afflicted everywhere.

THE PILES!

A CURE FOR LIFE SECURED!

DR. UPHAM'S INFERNAL REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF PILES.

The Vegetable Pile Electuary is warranted by Dr. Upham, a regular graduated physician of New York city, to be the only really successful remedy for the Piles, ever discovered in the American world.

The Electuary contains no Mineral Poisons, as Iodide, Colocynth, Gamboge, or other powerful and irritating purgative, the fear of taking cold with which, under its influence, is entirely unnecessary. It does according to directions a cure for life is secured.

Numerous certificates might be published, but I have a yearly book received of the efficacy of Dr. Upham's Electuary.

New York August 25, 1848.

Messrs. Hyatt & Kitchen—Gents: For several years past I have been troubled with piles, a very bad case of the bleeding indigestion, and weakness of the system. But my complaint is at last overcome, and I am able to dismiss from business, and a dread I had of physicians and patent medicines, which since this spring I never used any medicine or applied to a physician for relief, but after having been given over by several of the nation to be performed without success. Determined after this to try other means, I read an advertisement of a cure effected by the use of Dr. Upham's Electuary. I purchased three boxes at once, and from the use of which I found myself entirely cured of the Piles and my health much improved. I remain, your much indebted friend,

The writer of the above, from motives of delicacy, declines having his name used, but authorizes us to refer to him or show the original certificate to those who may doubt its authenticity.

Another facts in relation to the efficacy of Dr. Upham's Electuary.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9, 1849.

Dr. Upham—Dear Sir: About five years ago I was afflicted with what was called Chronic Dysentery. I have suffered with it ever since, and the disease have told me that my liver was affected, and from my bowels were ulcerated for blood and pus attended with a peculiar putrid smell with the frequent discharges. About June last I made a visit to Massachusetts, in hopes of benefit from a change of air, but all the more severely than ever before. While there a physician offered to cure me for $10, in about months. Happily, in the midst of intense pain, I received by Gadsum, I saw in a wrapper of your Electuary a perfect description of my complaint, together with many certificates of cures. The case gave confidence in the middle, and I purchased a box, and three more of which has apparently restored me, and am prepared to say every thing in its favor, of feeling as a matter I can in humanity be subscribed to do so.

Respectfully yours, BENJAMIN PERCIVAL.

CONSUMPTION CURED!

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE EFFECTUAL CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This astonishing remedy, as Peters, Catawba, and other roots, herbs and vegetable substances are combined, has in the hands of many competent physicians performed the most astonishing and speedy cures in all other medicines and practitioners have failed. It removes at once the cough by subduing the inflammation and other causes which produce it. In the consumptive and other affections of the Throat and Lungs, it relieves the cough by subduing the inflammation and other causes which produce it. Dear Sir: Immediately on receiving your Canchalagua, I purchased a bottle to an invalid friend of mine who thought he was in the last stage of consumption, and was confined to his bed. From the first dose he took he felt relief, and was entirely restored to health in a few days. I therefore believe the Canchalagua to be an excellent medicine for the cure of consumption, and recommend it to all afflicted with that disease.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT. We note in several of our exchanges, articles commenting upon the delays attending the transmission by mail of letters and papers. The Portland Advertiser complains that the correspondence, market reports for the merchants, &c, are always behind hand at least one day. This is also the case here. Our New York and Washington correspondence and papers are not always received in time. This is probably owing to a failure of connection between New York and Boston. Let it be remedied.

☞ The Ohio barge line of the Panama Star to the 5th. Governor Abernethy, of Oregon was among the most recent arrivals there. The Star says that so powerful an opposition has been established on the Atlantic side, that passengers are now taken from Chagres to New York for $5 each. Indeed the commander of one of the largest steamers has his instructions to take passengers at any price, or for nothing if necessary, to compete successfully with the opposition steamers.

☞ Messrs Fetno & Hale have an article of Furniture Polish for sale which takes the lead of anything heretofore made use of for that purpose. It is in high repute with furniture and piano forte manufacturers, carriage makers, stable keepers, saddlers and housekeepers. This article is manufactured by D. H. Shurley & Co., Boston, and is so very good a polish that it would be difficult to say too much in its favor.

☞ The fourth steamer of the Penobscot line made her appearance upon the Penobscot waters in fine order and under full repair, and has taken her place on the line between Castine and the county of Hancock, making two trips a week to Belfast, Castine and Sedgwick. This line is a popular one for those seeking the pleasures of the sea air in the warm season, and is moreover very convenient for the eastern travel to Boston. Captain Satterlee is a gentlemanly and obliging commander, and his arrangements for the season promise fair to be satisfactory to the public.

☞ We have received from Messrs Leonard Scott & Co of New York the 17 and 19th numbers of the Farmer's Guide to Scientific and Practical Agriculture, now in the course of publication in New York, and which will be completed by the first of July. The publishers state that there are about 200 pages more than the work was first intended to occupy, but in order that the price shall not exceed $5, they have concluded to reduce the size of the remaining numbers to 96 pages, instead of 64, so as to bring the work within the original proposition of 22 numbers, the price remaining the same. When the work is completed it will contain over 1,500 pages. The present number contains an interesting preface from Professor Stephens. No farmer who consults this work, however accomplished he may consider himself, can fail to derive valuable practical knowledge from its pages.

Legislative.

A despatch to the Mercury of Saturday evening, states that a bill authorizing the United States to build a Custom House in Kenduskeag stream has passed the legislature and that the 3d of June had been agreed upon as the day for a jubilee.

☞ The 20th number of the Dictionary of Mechanical Engineering and Engineering by D. Appleton & Co., New York has been received by Messrs P. T. Dorrell & Co.

☞ We are very much obliged to our friend in Washington for the pamphlet he has kindly forwarded to us.

BOOK OF THE TELEGRAPH. Boston Daniels. 1851.

This is a neat little volume which unfolds and illustrates the whole subject of the electric telegraph for conveying messages. The author of this work is the manufacturer of electrical instruments and his illustrated catalogue of instruments in this volume is quite interesting.

Fire.

NEW YORK, May 23.

About 11 o'clock last night the upper part of the extensive portion of Messrs. Worrall & Foundry on Saw Pit, fronting on Duane street, near Elm street was discovered to be on fire. It spread with a rapidity little short of the premises on Elm street was saved. The loss must be very great as many of the most valuable castings and patterns were destroyed. The walls of the building are standing. It is reported that two firemen were severely injured. A terrific thunder storm was prevailing at the time.

BOSTON, May 23

A destructive fire occurred last evening on Smith's wharf, consuming two large wooden warehouses, occupied by Charles Peirce, largest shipping merchant, Solomon Grant, and P. Frost & Co., Sailmakers, and James T. Pond—grain Commission Merchant. The loss is very heavy, but is mostly covered by insurance.

The shipping in the docks was in great danger, and had to be towed into the stream.

Steamboat Explosion.

NEW ORLEANS, May 22.

Accounts have just been received of the explosion of steamer Echo at Bayou Sara by which several persons were killed on Lwounded. The effect of the explosion was terrible.

The steamer Pennywort was sunk a few days since in the Arkansas River. We have not ascertained whether any lives were lost.

From Texas.

Advices from Texas to the 18th inst. have been received. The election campaign had fairly begun, and was causing much excitement.

Heavy rains had fallen. The crops severely. A freshet occurred on Brushy Creek, during which the river rose 10 feet (?) in one night, causing great destruction of property.

There is no Indian news of importance by this arrival.

A man named —— Gallagher was instantly killed on the railroad in this town on Thursday afternoon last. He was endeavoring to get on the train when in quick motion, but unfortunately for him, he had not activity enough to spring on the car he had hold of, he was drawn in between two of them and horribly mangled. He scarcely lived a minute after he was taken off the track. No person but himself was to blame. We have not learned whether he has left a family or not.—[Calais Journal.

Letters from Europe.—No. 3.

LONDON, May 9, 1851.

Now that the intense excitement consequent on the opening of the Crystal Palace has in some degree subsided, and curiosity being to a certain extent satisfied I shall be enabled to convey a more just idea of this extraordinary building and its wondrous contents. Yesterday, I again visited the scene of attraction, and found that, in the words of Goldsmith, "the wonder grew upon me."

The spectacle was no longer heightened in splendor by the presence of Queen Victoria and her brilliant Court. The superb canopy which overshadowed the throne on which the gorgeous chair had stood, alone remained to indicate that there the British Sovereign had performed the inaugural rite. No longer the superb Duchess of Sutherland commanded the admiration of all who gazed on her magnificent beauty, and no longer the illustrious projector of the scheme graced the Throne of Glass with his presence—but the great feats of the Exhibition remained. The Crystal Fountain still played, the tasteful inter plane upparadise tiller spring verdure of delicate green beneath the lofty transept and the myriad works of skill, art and science, lay around, above and beneath me.

I did give during like a detailed account of the contents of the Crystal Palace in a letter brief is this must necessarily be, would be, of course, impossible. I shall not attempt so hopeless a task, but rather ask you to refer to the numerous articles which will be written through the various avenues, and no more particular reference to the organ, some of the chief features of the Exhibition. This plan I shall also pursue in future letters on this subject.

Before I enter the building, which is by its eastern door and immediately in front of the screen which intercepts the view of the nave and the interior, the whole exterior of the Palace of Glass lay before me. I may pause for a moment at the end of a broad avenue, one thousand eight hundred and fifty feet in length, with glass, and bounded by tastefully decorated elevations of glass. The effect was novel and surpassingly beautiful. Right and left of this splendid avenue were other avenues, into which the eyes were invited, but with no practical hope of penetrating, for to be seen is to be admired and from which to subdivide from the interior to the west extremity.

Proceeding westward, I beheld in the centre of the avenue, the compartments allotted to the United States. On the right hand was a specimen of sculpture—the Dying Gaul—a fine production though far from faultless in execution. Next to it were the productions of American Artists, which in their whole display, decorating, and, in many instances, beautiful cloths, that seem to be created in a new the Greek Slave, which will immortalize the name of Hiram Power. I may be accused of partiality in here, I assert that this statue is, in my judgment, one of the two grandest productions of modern sculpture. I do not intend to enter into a question which may not terminate with the age, one, however, of the most marvellous work of human hands.

Turning my back away from the fascinating marble I took a glance at the American exhibition of products and manufactures, and here I regret to say that it is not what it might and ought to have been. Not half of the goods intended which the St. Lawrence bore to the shores of Great Britain are to be seen in the Crystal Palace and the meagerness of our show sadly contrasts with the abundance exhibited by nations far inferior in skill and enterprise. There has been great mistake somewhere, which, however, the United States exhibits numerous specimens, such as tools, cordage, textile fabrics, paints, colors, prints, daguerreotypes, bell, telegraph, apparatus, pianos and musical instruments, hot stoves, and stoves, and trunks, locks, iron hinges, paper hangings, a top buggy, and a Prince Albert wagon, carpeting, bedsteads, boots and shoes, scales, saddlery, stays, and manufactures, furs, India goods, perfumery, and shawls, nautical instruments, dentistry, locks, and a variety of other interesting objects. There are also rubber manufactures, machinery and mechanical implements, stoves, kitchen furniture, &c. &c. All these articles manufactured by D. H. Shurley & Co., Boston, and as very good a polish that it would be difficult to say too much in its favor.

Beyond these are specimens of fine produce, including agricultural products, including Indian corn, cotton, tobacco, preserved meats, wheat, flour, &c. &c. I observed one cargo which I could have wished had been kept at home, as I have seen many far superior to it in Boston and New York.

Upon the whole, I do not wonder at Wordsworth's raving, as he says, "Such a wilderness of sweets," and I can only say that I was not disappointed in a first visit of one week, and I can add to the test that I have been to the gallery on six occasions, and I can say that I have never been tired.

Over the door south of the transept appears in gilded shaped letters, the words, "Class I. Raw Materials." Commencing from the north, Class I. includes Vegetable Substances, Class II. Animal Substances, Class III. Mineral Substances, Class IV. Manufactures, Class V. Machinery, Class VI. Sculpture, Models, Plastic and Graphic Art, Class VII. Paper Hangings, Carpets, Floor Cloths, Class VIII. Glass, Class IX. Ceramic Manufactures, Class X. Philosophical Instruments, Class XI. Musical Instruments, Class XII. Horticultural Products, Class XIII. Cotton, Class XIV. Wool, Class XV. Silk, Class XVI. Linen, Class XVII. Woollen, Class XVIII. Leather, Class XIX. Paper, Class XX. Printing, Class XXI. Dyes, Class XXII. Chemical Products, Class XXIII. Medical and Surgical Contrivances, Class XXIV. Horticultural Implements, Class XXV. Agricultural Implements, Class XXVI. Manufactures not classed elsewhere.

Burke is but a step, and scarcely a less distance intervenes between the sublimity of the Decian window and the simplicity of a German toy-stand. It is quite amusing to observe a big "Leabrock," sort of a son of Allemagne arranging they children's toys. The contrast between the German giant and the delicate fabrics he is setting off to the best advantage, provokes a smile. But we must join the throngs who are rushing into the suite of rooms far ished by a Viennese upholsterer.

These are indeed magnificent, and must afford a high treat to the lovers of wood carving. There is a book-case which is a very miracle of this branch of art—the flowers seem to wave and the leaves to tremble, so nearly do they approach the perfection of nature, the floor is of inlaid woods. Upon these is one of the most superb beds in the world as it is literally covered with carving of the most costly and delicate description. Seen on the throne of the famous Grinling Gibbons, the English carver, nothing has been seen like it. These Austrian Rooms are among the great gems of the show, and will well repay repeated visits.

So will the superb Amazon of Kiss, of Berlin. This group of colossal proportions represents a female on horseback in the act of punishing a juvenile at her or partner who has sprung on the fore-quarters of her affright ed steed. This is a wonderful work of art, and of course its author in the very first rank of sculptors. Nothing can surpass the life-like character of the Amazon's horse and the panther as a tribute to the genius of Kiss a great honor is to be given to him by the sculptors and artists of England. Will does he deserve such an honor or Quitting for a time the floor of the house, I ascended to one of the galleries for the purpose of taking a bird's eye view of the busy scene. And, in truth, a busy and a splendid view I enjoyed. For as the eye could reach the building was alive with gaily dressed people who, in its stately and trophies and trees and fountains, wandered as amid the groves of some enchanted land. As I strolled onwards to where a tiny fountain sent up its sparkling jet, on my right hand, and an assortment of Messrs. Parkes from a little golden spoon, to my left, I understood, enabled, thunderstruck, to convince. Then I lingered to witness two of the most superb cakes, the sight of which set my mouth at once watering. Gunter, the great pastry cook, was the architect of the cakes, which was a triumph of taste, near it, and above it all presented sugar and Cupid and Hymen as the emblems was another, while the centre piece was the object upon which the eye could be separated from the tempting morsel part of the cake, that certain the happy pair to preserve the latter as a memento of the happiest days of their lives. It was a model of a church—St. Stephen's Chapel—composed of Terra Cotta, and it is stated that the church itself was also built of the same material. Terra Cotta was also employed in the construction of the principal fittings—such as the screen, pews, organ gallery, pulpit, &c. This is a new adaptation of the material, and, if I may judge from the model, it will be found a valuable material for the builder. The spire severely tests its capabilities, as it is of open gothic—or tracery work. Where free stone is scarce, doubtless Terra Cotta will be often used to supply its place now that this application of it has been made with success.

A model of the great and increasing town of Liverpool cannot but prove interesting to those Americans who are commercially connected with that great British emporium. This model, which is most beautifully constructed to scale, must be the result of immense labor. It is twenty-five feet long, and exhibits at a glance a bird's eye view of the town, the docks, the Mersey, and the adjacent places. Hundreds of miniature vessels, amongst them the great Britain, crowd the docks. Fleets of merchantmen are seen on the Mersey sailing to or from the port, and in the busy streets, so minutely delineated that any particular house may be distinguished, numerous vehicles are seen. Hundreds, too, of miniature men and women are observed. In short, it is Liverpool in a glass case, and an exhibition of itself.

Next to this, the Thames Plate Glass Company exhibit the largest plate of glass in the world, the dimensions of which are each ten feet eight inches by ten feet, there is not a blemish on its brilliant shrine, and it is as "true" as possible. It is placed in such a position as to reflect the whole length of the main avenue of the Crystal Palace, and the effect produced is superb.

I find that I have already exceeded the bounds which I had prescribed for myself when I commenced this letter, and yet I have only glanced at a few of the wonderful things in this wonderful place. In a future number I shall resume the subject, and continue these epistles until I shall have made my readers as well acquainted with the productions of human skill which are here exhibited.

As a wind up to this, let me give you a copy of a direction on one of the cases of goods from France, it is amusing enough, and it is moreover a true copy—the said direction ran thus—

The recommendations, solicited, abounding as they do with numerous testimonials to the value and efficacy of different medicines, it must be truly gratifying to the proprietor to find that the public are daily receiving relief from the use of Sands' Sarsaparilla. The following are a few out of a great variety of diseases cured by this invaluable preparation. Families, conclusive evidence in favor of this fact, and the experience of forty years, that no one of the many proprietary medicines that now flood the country, can be relied upon with the same confidence. Numerous unsolicited certificates, daily received by the proprietors, stand as a beacon, and an invitation to the suffering and diseased, to call and be convinced of the truth of these assertions. Thousands of cases could be enumerated, but the following, from a few of the many, will be sufficient to satisfy the most credulous.

New York July 8th 1849

Messrs A B & D Sands—Gentlemen: I feel it a duty I owe to you, to express my feelings and convey to you the knowledge of the great benefit I have derived from the use of your invaluable Sarsaparilla. About two years since, I was first attacked with a pain in the small of my back, which was followed by a general debility of the whole system. I applied to several physicians, and was treated by them for different complaints, but received no benefit from their prescriptions. I was induced to try your Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken one bottle I found relief, and by the time I had taken three bottles, I was entirely restored to health, and have remained so ever since. I have frequently recommended it to my friends, and have never known it to fail in effecting a cure when taken according to the directions. I consider it the best blood purifier now before the public, and shall always keep it in my family, as a preventative of disease. Yours respectfully,

JOHN BANYARD 91 Chatham st.
